

Get the facts. Spread the word.

Spreading the word about participation in clinical trials is a community effort — successful clinical trials can lead to life-saving prevention and treatment methods for cancer. The National Cancer Institute's NEW Clinical Trials Education Series includes materials to help increase awareness and explain that clinical trials can be a viable prevention or treatment option.

To order FREE materials, call 1-800-4-CANCER or download them at www.cancer.gov/publications.